

RECALL NOTICE

90° POWER INFLATOR

Models with date stamp “00/0” and “05/1”

Stop Diving BCs From

AMER-SEA[®] and Life-Guard Systems

VERY IMPORTANT  TAKE ACTION

“90degree” POWER INFLATOR VALVE
POTENTIAL OF CRACKING AND OR BREAKING.

POTENTIALLY LIFE THREATENING

Several 90° inflators have broken while in use. This creates the serious potential for letting the air out of the diver’s tank and potentially serious injury or death. Fortunately, no injuries have been reported.

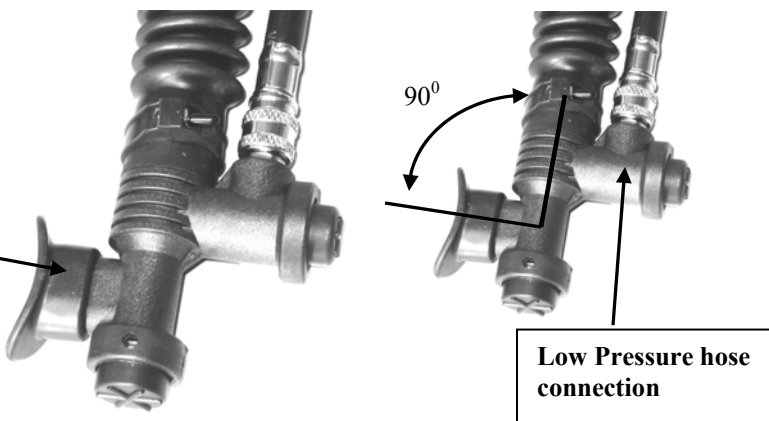

The recall 90° inflators are from two (2) production runs with date stamps “00/0” and “05/1”. Date stamp details are on next page.

Pictures of the recalled 90° inflator valves.

The mouth piece is positioned 90° (90 degrees) from the body of the inflator.

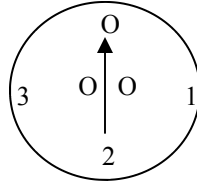

The mouth piece is located on the opposite side of the body from the Low Pressure hose connection.

DATE STAMP Identify the recall inflators by removing the mouth-piece and locating the date stamp

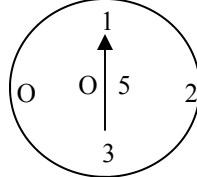

Recall “date stamp” number 00 and 05

Remove the rubber mouthpiece to expose the date stamp located on the rigid section of the mouthpiece.
